

When people talk on cell phones they generally talk louder than they normally do. I can imagine nothing worse than to be sitting in the center seat on a cross country flight between two people who talk the entire time on their cell phones.